Meal Drop-Off Instructions

Fold this card in half — front is the routine, back is the address & quirks

THE PORCH & COOLER ROUTINE

1. Text when you're on the way — a fifteen-minute heads-up is plenty.

2. Text again when you arrive. No reply means they may be feeding, sleeping, or resting. That's fine — the plan is the same either way.

3. Gently set the meal at the porch, or tuck it straight into the cooler if there's no answer.

4. One soft knock, then leave. Skip the doorbell — babies, surgery slots, and bad days all vote for quiet.

5. Send a photo text: what you left and where, so nobody has to guess or dig around.

6. Cooler logic: ice packs already inside; lid on tight; heavy container low; label facing up so they can read what's inside without moving it.

7. You do not have to come inside, take off your shoes, or stay five minutes. Dropping food off is the whole favor, and it's a real one.

THE DETAILS

Address:

_____

Best door / gate code / spot:

_____

Drop-off window that works:

_____

Cooler is here (circle): ☐ Porch ☐ By door ☐ Inside garage

Cell number for drop-off texts:

_____

Pets / kids / quirks to know:

_____

If there's truly no cooler: leave the meal inside a closed bag out of sun and text where it is — then head home.

Thank you for feeding people you care about. This card is the whole etiquette — no gift boxes, no lingering. Just food, a photo text, and a done deal.

Print extras for volunteers who don't want to take a photo of someone's address on their phone. Card readers: this page is designed to fold so the routine faces out.